

During these challenging times, CDMRP remains committed to continuing its proud tradition of incorporating consumer perspectives into our research application review process. We understand that COVID-19 has affected consumer involvement in our processes, and we are leveraging virtual environments in order to continue and even bolster participation in our review process.

Consumers selected to participate on our peer and programmatic review panels should coordinate with our Consumer Reviewer Administrator team (Consumers@CDMRP.org) to identify how we can best facilitate your involvement. CDMRP will continually update our website with the latest news and updates.

I encourage everyone to continue to make safety and wellness a priority during this time. CDMRP remains dedicated to our professionals who work tirelessly towards our mission of responsibly managing collaborative research that discovers, develops, and delivers health care solutions for Service Members, Veterans and the American public.

Stay safe!
